

Clues For A Treasure Hunt for Family and Friends

Reception Center

1. Getting lost causes such stress,
What came before today's GPS?

2. Correspondence today is by email and texting,
What was used long ago is the clue to your next thing.

Dairy Barn

3. When thunder clouds roll,
We stand erect.
A strike to the barn!
Our job, to reject.

Farm Museum

4. Necessity may be the mother of invention,
But to use this clue, you'll have to pay attention!
It's longer, sharper and much older than the croc,
You'd slip this on to cut down a stalk.

5. Eggs on a farm are normally meant to eat,
But this one is for mending
What you wear on your feet.
What am I?

If I Told You Where That Would Give It Away

6. Harvesting ice was a cold weather task
To keep the milk cold and ensure it would last,
The tools for the job are kept in this place,
Find the spot where they hang and fill in the space.

7. While you're here look around with careful inspection,
These ice tools are part of Muscoot's Collection
Which one, can you tell me, was used for both hoisting
And carrying ice to a box, for its resting.

Bell Garden

8. With morning chores done at the noon of the day,
Before the men left for the fields to rake hay,
The sound that this made told all who were able,
To come to the kitchen and sit down at the table.

Lower Dairy Barn

9. Milking by hand was a regular chore.
You'll find one of these just inside the door.
The farmhand would grab it and set it by Bessie,
Then move it along as his own little settee.

Any Place

10. Collections can be both living and non
So far it's the 'dead stuff' we've focused upon,
But Muscoot's alive with so many creatures,
Which is your favorite animal feature?

Footnote

There are many treasures in Muscoot's Collection,
And each one is worthy of our protection.
You own them, it's true, I might add if I dare,
You're just knowing they're here, can help with their care.

Participants in this hunt are entitled to a free family hayride.
Today by 2:30 show the paper to hayride driver Tim or bring this paper back any Sunday through October.
